1. Bob Nelson squares away to successfully lay down another run scoring bunt. 2. A click of the camera breaks concentration for Brad Rhoades. 3. Curve balls and speeding fast balls are a few of the successful pitches that Jeff Green demonstrates during the games. 4. Roc Murray puts full emotion and concentration into watching his coach's signs.

Going, going, gone —

when the season had finally ended for the team, much baseball was played and played well. Coach Bud Murray worked the players to the near point of exhaustion. This work payed off. Four of the players went to the all-league teams. Tad Vengar and Roc Murray were chosen to play third base and second base respectively on the first team of the all-league teams. Also, Jeff Green and Bob Foster were requested as a left-fielder and catcher for the second team. Outstanding statistics for the season contained such things as Tad Vengar's batting average of .409. Aiding to this batting average were many home runs and triples. The players enjoyed both Coach Murrays - the coach and the person. The team as a whole performed well throughout the season. They proved to many teams that Hart stands separated in their baseball talents. Catching a lot of dirt as well as grounders and fly balls, the team gave their best for Coach Murray, themselves and the school.
